P R E F A C E .

IT is with much pleasure that I am at length enabled to issue the first volume of "The Royal Lineage of our Noble and Gentle Families."

The time and labour involved in its compilation, and the various difficulties incidental to the task, have proved greater than I had ventured to anticipate, or than might appear credible at first sight. But I have reason to believe that my efforts will not have been made in vain, and that the plan of the work as now elaborated and carefully carried into execution is such as to ensure general approbation. I may also fairly hope to accomplish more rapid progress in the future, now that I am fairly embarked in this novel undertaking.

Though this is not the first work that has appeared on Royal Descents, it is the first in which they have been genealogically treated. Hitherto they have only appeared in the form of chart pedigrees, which, though useful adjuncts to a genealogical narrative, are by themselves meagre and uninteresting. The families included in the present work will have their descent from the blood royal traced in the form of a detailed narrative, introducing the various historic houses—now extinct, for the most part, in the male line—through whom they derive their royal descent. Most of the names illustrious in our early annals are no longer to be found in works dealing with the extant Peerage, but they will necessarily occupy a prominent place in the pages of the present work. A well-known and almost solitary exception to the utter extinction of these historic houses is to be seen in the mighty race of Nevill, still represented in the English Peerage by a lineal descendant in the male line of Ralph Nevill, first Earl of Westmoreland, and his second wife, the daughter of John of Gaunt. Both on the ground of its exceptional paternal ancestry, and on that of its descent, in an unbroken line, from a match with the blood-royal of England,* the House of Nevill fitly occupies the first place in my first volume, and deserves the unprecedented elaboration which its pedigree has received at my hands. But it is not only in these respects that I claim for my undertaking a novel character. Many of those who are outside the charmed circle of the titled classes can prove their descent from the kings of England, and I have taken the opportunity afforded me by this fact, and by the wide sphere which the subject consequently presents, to extend my genealogical operations beyond the Peerage and Baronetage, and to deal on a somewhat comprehensive scale with the history of our gentle though untitled families.

In so doing I shall be breaking new ground, not only so far as I am myself concerned, but also in respect that, numerous as are the works dealing with the Peerage and Baronetage, no worthy effort has ever been made to deal with the families beyond their pale; and yet there are to be found among the latter houses of equal, if not of greater antiquity than those which bear "the guinea stamp." And of these many are no longer to be found in the ranks of the "landed gentry," and are consequently supplanted in the work which deals with that class, and which bears the imprimatur of Sir Bernard Burke, by families either of no pedigree at all, or of pedigrees which no one but Ulster King-of-Arms could dare to foist upon the public.

I have therefore decided to comprise in my work, as a supplementary and special feature, accurate narratives of the "paternal ancestry" of the principal families that figure in its pages. The usual plan in such cases is the exceedingly simple one of printing a pedigree just as it is received, with the result, in some instances, of including much that is false, and in others of omitting much that ought to appear. To exclude, on the one hand, information which is false, and to amplify, on the other, that which is imperfect, is a work involving no little time, trouble, and cost, but I have set myself to perform it to the best of my abilities, trusting that the members of the families, whose history I undertake to compile, will, on their part, loyally supply me with that detailed and personal information without which it would be utterly impossible to make my work complete. I venture to think that in respect not only of elaboration, but of truth, I may fearlessly invite comparison between the pedigrees in these pages and those which have appeared in any other work.

Mr. Freeman has denounced, in scathing language, "the hideous nonsense . . . of the absurd tales which fill the pages of Sir Bernard Burke" ("Pedigrees and Pedigree Makers," Contemporary Review, June, 1877). From his indignant criticisms I here extract a few weighty sentences.

"What, for instance, can be the state of mind of Sir Bernard Burke? Does he know, or does he not know, the manifest falsehood of the tales which he reprints year after year? He may, one is tempted to say, be reasonably called on for a more critical examination than we can ask from people who simply send him the stories which they have been taught to believe about their own families. If he says that he is not responsible for them, that he simply puts into his book what is sent to him without examining into its truth, if he says that the responsibility for the truth or falsehood of the stories rests with those who send them to him, he shows a very imperfect notion of the duties of authorship or editorship, even in its lowest form. No man can have a right to publish, without contradiction or comment, as alleged fact and not as avowed fiction, a number of stories which are false on the face of them. The readers of the book accept the stories on the faith of the author or editor. If they think about the matter at all, they hold that it is his business to examine and verify the statements which are sent to him. Indeed, Sir Bernard Burke himself tells us, in his 'Prefatory Notice' prefixed to the thirty-second edition of his Peerage and Baronetage, that he has 'again subjected its pages to searching revision and extensive amendment.' Here, then, Sir Bernard Burke distinctly takes on himself what reason would have laid upon him even if he had not taken it upon himself, namely, responsibility for his own book. It is the Ulster King-at-Arms, not the unknown persons who send him the accounts of this or that family, whom we must, in fairness, blame for the monstrous fictions which appear as the early history of so many families."

These criticisms apply with special force to the pedigrees which appear in his "Landed Gentry." For that work deserves, if possible, even more justly than his "Peerage," the description of a "gorgeous repertory of genealogical mythology" (Chester Waters' "Parish Registers in England," 1883 edition, page 39). In the words of an "eminent jurist and herald" (as he has been recently styled by the Edinburgh Review), whom the whirligig of time has oddly transformed into Ulster's latest apologist,—

"While the 'Peerage' may be, to a slight extent, improving from year to year, the 'Landed Gentry' is deteriorating. . . . The immense majority of the pedigrees in the 'Landed Gentry,' including more especially the Scottish pedigrees, cannot, I fear, be characterized as otherwise than utterly worthless. The errors of the 'Peerage' are as nothing to the fables which we encounter everywhere. Families of notoriously obscure origin have their veins filled with the blood of generations of royal personages of the ancient and mythical world. . . . Other pedigrees contain a small germ of truth eked out with a mass of fiction, in the proportion of Falstaff's bread and sack; while an extreme minuteness of detail is often combined with reckless disregard of dates and historical possibilities" ("Popular Genealogists," Edinburgh: Edmonston and Douglas, 1865).

I would urge that though Ulster may still blazon this work as “an adequate and faithful (!) record of a very influential and important class” (preface to 6th edition, 1879), it has far too long been, to use his own words, “considered” (i.e., by the simple-minded public) “an authority on the subject of which it treats.” Specially is this the case on the Continent, where the imprimatur of a King-of-arms on a work adorned with his official insignia naturally carries all the weight which it should, but which, alas! it does not, possess. It is therefore on behalf of Continental, even more than of home readers, that a vigorous protest should be at length raised against this quasi-official publication of notoriously fictitious descents. To quote from an article on “Pedigrees and Peerages” which has recently appeared in the Edinburgh Review (July, 1883):—

“The not unfrequent fabrication of a fictitious ancestry on behalf of wealthy upstarts naturally reminds us of La Rochefoucauld’s happy definition of hypocrisy, ‘The homage which vice pays to virtue.’ The heralds of the Middle Ages were sometimes inclined to carry back their pedigrees to a remote period, and to invent a good many ‘forbears’ for the earliest ancestor on record. . . . The modern professors of the science of genealogy are still bolder in their procedure, and such is the persuasive power of wealth that in the course of a single week they contrive to furnish the obscurest novus homo with an historic name, an elaborate pedigree, and a highly respectable gallery of family portraits. . . . It is much to be regretted that these unscrupulous adventurers are no longer liable to the salutary punishment administered to certain framers of false pedigrees in the sixteenth century—to wit, the loss of an ear.”

We look anxiously, but in vain, for some signs of amelioration and repentance. Undeterred by Mr. Freeman’s emphatic warning, Sir Bernard assures us in the “Prefatory Notice” prefixed to the Sixth Edition of this work (1879) that—

“No pains have been spared in the preparation of this edition of the ‘Landed Gentry.’ Every available source of information has been exhausted, each memoir has been carefully revised,” etc., etc.

We are therefore entitled to claim, with Mr. Freeman, that “it is the Ulster King-at-Arms, and not the unknown persons who send him the accounts of this or that family, whom we must in fairness blame for the monstrous fictions which appear as the early history of so many families.” For notwithstanding the revision here vaunted, these “monstrous fictions” bedeck its pages with more reckless audacity than ever. Each successive edition of this imposing work bears fresh witness to the esteem which it enjoys among those who manufacture spurious pedigrees, and those for whom they are manufactured, for each successive edition contains a fresh infusion of these transparent and contemptible concoctions, to the joy of their compounders, to the deception of the public, and of course to the profit of the editor. The purveyors of pedigrees, when in the good old times such would have found their career abruptly closed by the official intervention of a most formidable critic in the King-of-arms, now find in a King-of-arms their most powerful patron and accomplice, while the task of exposing them is left to private enterprise, and is actually rendered increasingly difficult by the official patronage they enjoy.

As to Coat Armour, I regret to say it has been allowed to drift into so anarchic a condition as to be now in an even worse state than genealogy. Here, again, though the irresponsible heraldic stationer—the tradesman who, so obligingly “finds” arms for his customers—is in too many cases doubtless to blame, the real responsibility must lie with those who give official currency to these inventions and piracies. The official ægis of a King-of-arms has, been freely cast over these spurious coats which it is his special official function to expose and suppress! And false heraldry, moreover, unlike false genealogy, is not a mere imposition upon the public. In the innumerable cases where coat armour, the peculiar property of a certain family, has been fraudulently assumed by strangers in blood, a deliberate injury is done to the rightful owners of the coat. To such a farce, in fact, has heraldry now been reduced, that were an “avenging angel” suddenly to arise and to exercise the functions of a King-of-arms as they were exercised by a Dugdale, not only would the coach panel, the note-paper, and “the family plate” be deprived in the great majority of instances of the armorial insignia which now adorn them, but few public buildings, from the cathedral to the banquetting house, could pass unscathed through the ordeal, or undergo with impunity such a “visitation.”

I have consequently found myself reluctantly compelled practically to exclude from these pages all mention of Coat Armour.

These remarks will doubtless be assailed by cynical critics and genealogists, who may charge me with posing as omniscient or immaculate. To such a pretension, I need scarcely observe, I make no claim. I merely wish it to be clearly understood that, so far as my knowledge and experience enables me, I have tested every pedigree submitted to me for publication, and that in no single instance have I included a descent the truthfulness of which I had the least reason to suspect merely because it was sent me for insertion.

I cannot but hope that though in some instances I may be forced to reject a descent altogether, and in others to prune and correct it, yet the public at large will value this work all the more because of its efforts at accuracy and truth, and will remember that such excision guarantees the trustworthiness of the information which has passed unscathed through the ordeal. To quote once more from Mr. Freeman's Essay :—

“When a man is bold enough to begin his pedigree in the seventeenth or eighteenth century, still more when he is bold enough to begin it in the nineteenth, lovers of truth will respect him as a fellow-lover of truth. . . . All the more honour then to those, and there are not a few, who withstand the temptation, and who claim no forefathers save those to whom they can prove a right.”

They will also find that the amount of rejected matter is far more than counter-balanced by my original additions.

Irrespective, therefore, of its Royal Descents, this work should command peculiar interest on account of the numerous genealogies which will only be found in its pages, and which will enable many families for the first time to possess, in a permanent and handy form, an elaborate account of their relatives and kin, with a trustworthy history of their ancestors.

THE DESCENT OF REV. ROBERT LONGE, OF SPIXWORTH PARK, NORFOLK, FROM THE BLOOD ROYAL OF ENGLAND.

EDWARD III., King of England, Earl of Chester 1320, Duke of Aquitaine, Count of Ponthieu and Montreuil, 1325; crowned at Westminster in his father's lifetime, 1 Feb., 1327; defeated the Scots at Haliidon Hill, 1333.

In 1339 he assumed the style of "King of France and England, and Lord of Ireland," and quartered the arms of France in the first quarter; gained a great naval victory over the French off Sluys 1340, and won the celebrated battle of Cressy 26 Aug., 1346; 17 Oct. following the Scots were defeated at Neville Cross, and King David II. taken prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 11 years. Instituted the order of the Garter 1349. His son, the BLACK PRINCE, defeated the French at the battle of Poitiers, 19 Sept., 1356, and brought King John prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 5 years (for further particulars, see Royal Lineage, Foster's Peerage). The king died at Sheen, Surrey, 21 June, 1377, having had, with other issue,

JOHN OF GAUNT (4th son), created Duke of Lancaster in parliament 13 Nov., 1362; married 1st, 13 May, 1359, Blanche, youngest daughter and co-heir of Henry, Duke of Lancaster, grandson of Henry III.; she buried in St. Paul's Cathedral 1369, having had, with 2 daughters, a son.

[1] HENRY, became HENRY IV. OF ENGLAND.

JOHN OF GAUNT married 3rdly, at Lincoln, 13 Jan., 1396, Katherine, daughter of Sir Payn Roet,

THE DESCENT OF GWINNETT TYLER, ESQ.,
OF COTTRELL, CO. GLAMORGAN,
FROM THE BLOOD ROYAL OF ENGLAND.

EDWARD III., King of England, Earl of Chester 1320, Duke of Aquitaine, Count of Ponthieu and Montreuil 1325; crowned at Westminster in his father's lifetime, 1 Feb., 1327; defeated the Scots at Hallidon Hill 1333. In 1339 he assumed the style of

"King of France and England, and Lord of Ireland," and quartered the arms of France in the first quarter; gained a great naval victory over the French off Sluys 1340, and won the celebrated battle of Cressy 26 Aug., 1346; 17 Oct. following the Scots were defeated at Neville Cross, and King David II. taken prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 11 years. Instituted the order of the Garter 1349. His son, the BLACK PRINCE, defeated the French at the battle of Poitiers 19 Sept., 1356, and brought King John prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 5 years (for further particulars see Royal Lineage, Foster's Peerage). The king died at Sheen, Surrey, 21 June, 1377, having had, with other issue,

GEORGE BRACKENBURY, ESQ.,
FROM THE BLOOD ROYAL OF ENGLAND.

EDWARD III., King of England, Earl of Chester 1320, Duke of Aquitaine, Count of Ponthieu and Montreuil 1325; crowned at Westminster in his father's lifetime, 1 Feb., 1327; defeated the Scots at Hallidon Hill, 1333.

In 1339 he assumed the style of "King of France and England, and Lord of Ireland," and quartered the arms of France in the first quarter; gained a great naval victory over the French off Sluys 1340, and won the celebrated battle of Cressy 26 Aug., 1346; 17 Oct. following the Scots were defeated at Neville Cross, and King David II. taken prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 11 years. Instituted the order of the Garter 1349. His son, the BLACK PRINCE, defeated the French at the battle of Poitiers 19 Sept., 1356, and brought King John prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 5 years (for further particulars, see Royal Lineage, Foster's Peerage). The king died at Sheen, Surrey, 21 June, 1377, having had, with other issue,

JOHN OF GAUNT (4th son), created Duke of Lancaster in parliament 13 Nov., 1362; married 1st, 13 May, 1359, Blanche, youngest daughter and co-heir of Henry, Duke of Lancaster, grandson of Henry III.; she buried in St. Paul's Cathedral, in 1369, having had, with 2 daughters, a son.

[1] HENRY, became HENRY IV. OF ENGLAND.

THE DESCENT OF
 PETER HENRY DE BLAQUIÈRE, ESQ.,
 FROM THE BLOOD ROYAL OF ENGLAND.

EDWARD III., King of England, Earl of Chester 1320, Duke of Aquitaine, Count of Ponthieu and Montreuil 1325; crowned at Westminster in his father's lifetime, 1 Feb., 1327; defeated the Scots at Hallidon Hill, 1333. In 1339 he assumed the style of "King of France and England, and Lord of Ireland," and quartered the arms of France in the first quarter; gained a great naval victory over the French off Sluys 1340, and won the celebrated battle of Cressy 26 Aug., 1346; 17 Oct. following the Scots were defeated at Neville Cross, and King David II. taken prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 11 years. Instituted the order of the Garter 1349. His son, the BLACK PRINCE, defeated the French at the battle of Poitiers 19 Sept., 1356, and brought King John prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 5 years (for further particulars see Royal Lineage, Foster's Peerage). The king died at Sheen, Surrey, 21 June, 1377, having had, with other issue,

THE DESCENT OF
FROM THE BLOOD ROYAL OF ENGLAND.

EDWARD III., King of England, Earl of Chester 1320, Duke of Aquitaine, Count of Ponthieu and Montreuil 1325; crowned at Westminster in his father's lifetime, 1 Feb., 1327; defeated the Scots at Hallidon Hill, 1333. In 1339 he assumed the style of "King of France and England, and Lord of Ireland," and quartered the arms of France in the first quarter; gained a great naval victory over the French off Sluys 1340, and won the celebrated battle of Cressy 26 Aug., 1346; 17 Oct. following the Scots were defeated at Neville Cross, and King David II. taken prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 11 years. Instituted the order of the Garter 1349. His son, the BLACK PRINCE, defeated the French at the battle of Poitiers, 19 Sept., 1356, and brought King John prisoner to London, where he remained nearly 5 years (for further particulars see Royal Lineage, Foster's Peerage). The king died at Sheen, Surrey, 21 June, 1377, having had, with other issue,

JOHN OF GAUNT (4th son), created Duke of Lancaster in parliament 13 Nov., 1362; married 1st, 13 May, 1359, Blanche, youngest daughter and co-heir of Henry, Duke of Lancaster, grandson of Henry III.; she buried in St. Paul's cathedral, 1369, having had, with 2 daughters, a son.

[1] HENRY, became HENRY IV. OF ENGLAND.

JOHN OF GAUNT married 3rdly, at Lincoln, 13 Jan., 1396, Katherine, daughter of Sir Payn Roet, Guienne King-of-Arms, and widow of Sir Otes Swynford, Knt.; she died 10 May, 1403, buried in Lincoln cathedral, having had, with 3 sons (see Royal Lineage, Foster's Peerage), an only daughter.

[2] Joan, will dated 10 May, 1440; died 13 Nov. following, buried at Lincoln; married 1st to SIR ROBERT FERRERS, son of Sir Robert, who had summons to parliament as Baron Ferrers, of Wemme, Salop, 1375-9 (by his wife Elizabeth, only daughter and heir of Robert, Lord Boteler, of Wemme), Sir Robert (who never had summons to parliament) died in 1410, and the barony of Ferrers, of Wemme fell into abeyance between his daughters; and on the death of his mother, who outlived him, the barony of Boteler, of Wemme, also fell into abeyance between his 2 daughters; viz.:

1/ Elizabeth, married to John, 6th Baron Greystock, governor of Roxburgh castle; summoned to parliament 1419 to 1435, and died 1436, having had 4 sons and a daughter.

2/ Mary or Margery, married to Ralph, younger son of Ralph Nevill, Earl of Westmoreland, next mentioned (by his 1st wife, Margaret Stafford, see page 12), and had issue (of whom subsequently).

JOAN, RELICT OF SIR ROBERT FERRERS, re-married as 2nd wife to Ralph Nevill, 1st Earl of Westmoreland, K.G., so created in full parliament by patent, dated 21 Richard II., 1399, 4th BARON NEVILL OF RABY (for his issue see page 4); their descendant,

HON. RICHARD HENRY ROPER, son of Henry, 8th Lord Teynham, and his wife Anne, in her own right Baroness Dacre (see page 87), rector of Clones, co. Monaghan, upwards of 60 years; born Nov., 1723, died Nov., 1810, having married 1st, Hon. Mary Chetwynd, daughter of William, 3rd Viscount Chetwynd; she died Jan., 1758, having had an only child, Mary, who died young, 1764; he married 2ndly, 1759, Mary, daughter of Thomas Tenison, of Monaghan; she died 16 Feb., 1795, leaving, with 3 sons, 2 daughters (see chart pedigree, page 118), of whom the elder,

ANNA MARIA, ROPER died 1810, having married 1st, 15 June, 1788, to Valentine Blake, Esq., of Lehinch, co. Mayo (son of Mark

Chapter 1: Introduction to the Study of Language

The study of language is a complex and multifaceted discipline that encompasses a wide range of topics, from the structure of individual words to the social and cultural contexts in which language is used. This chapter provides an overview of the field and introduces the key concepts and methods that will be explored in the following chapters.

Language is a unique human capacity that allows us to communicate, share information, and build social relationships. It is a dynamic system that evolves over time and varies across different cultures and communities. Understanding the nature of language and how it is acquired and used is essential for a deeper understanding of human cognition and social interaction.

This chapter will explore the historical development of the study of language, from the early days of philology and linguistics to the modern interdisciplinary approaches of the 20th and 21st centuries. We will also discuss the various subfields of linguistics, including phonetics, morphology, syntax, semantics, and pragmatics, and how they contribute to our understanding of the language system.

The study of language is not only a theoretical pursuit but also has practical applications in many areas, such as education, psychology, and artificial intelligence. By understanding the principles of language, we can improve our teaching methods, develop more effective communication strategies, and create more natural and intelligent language processing systems.

In the following chapters, we will delve deeper into the structure and function of language, exploring the intricate details of how words are formed, how sentences are constructed, and how meaning is conveyed. We will also examine the role of language in human development and the challenges faced by individuals with language disorders.

Press Notices

MR. FOSTER'S PEERAGE WORK.

The labour spent by Mr. Foster on this volume must have been immense; for under every title, whether of the peers or of the baronets, he gives not only all the male issue, directly or collaterally related to the title, and in remainder to it, but also the children of all the married female members of the aristocracy. This information, it is only fair to add, is not to be found in any other existing "Peerage" or "Baronetage," so that the credit of it belongs wholly to Mr. Foster. We can certify to the great care with which the work is edited, the tastefulness of the heraldic illustrations, and the excellent typography and binding, which go far to increase its practical value as a book of reference.—The Times.

This is the first issue of a new Peerage, which surpasses all others in the splendour of its get-up, and which joins issue with Lodge, Debrett, and Burke in a way which is likely to excite something more than mere curiosity, for everything which the editor considers "sham," either title, arms, or pedigree, he unhesitatingly sets down as such. Each page of the work has evidently been made a study. The heraldic illustrations are all new in design, quaint, effective, and well executed, and Mr. Foster has followed a mode of printing the pedigrees by which their perplexing details can be easily understood and traced with less trouble, as it appears to us, than in any existing publications of a similar kind. . . . But the most important part of the work, genealogically, is the Baronetage, which has a special department named "Chaos." We will merely remark on this head that the editor is evidently a courageous man, as well as an honest one, and we hope that his labour of five years may be rewarded by all the success it merits. . . . The volume is altogether one of the most attractive we have ever seen, and on account of its many special features is certain to become a popular one.—Dublin Daily Express.

We strongly recommend Mr. Foster's "Peerage"; it is lucid, reliable, admirably arranged, splendidly printed—a volume which must be placed in all libraries, public as well as private. Moreover, it is a herculean literary task, conscientiously and thoroughly well performed.—Whitehall Review.

This is quite a notable book—the coats of arms are bravely and handsomely drawn. The work is a laborious and conscientious compilation, a valuable record, and a fine handsome volume.—Vanity Fair.

It may fairly be presumed, since Mr. Foster has had free access to the records of the Heralds' College, and the aid of Garter and Bluemantle, that this new Peerage is more accurate than those that have preceded it. . . . Mr. Foster has collected an immense amount of new matter for this work, as may be seen at once on comparing it with other Peerages and Baronetages, and in most instances he gives far fuller genealogies of the later generations of titled families than have previously appeared. An attractive feature in this work, and one that seems likely to commend it to the public, is its engravings, and the armorial designs which accompany each article, and are of more artistic merit than those usually supplied in works of the kind.

The most original feature, and one which will doubtless attract a good deal of attention, is a section styled "Chaos," at the end of the Baronetage, of great novelty and boldness. This portion of the work will probably disgust those persons whose pretensions it calls in question, though on the other hand it will certainly please genealogists and all those who do not approve of persons bearing honours to which they are not entitled. . . . Mr. Foster is deserving of praise for his courage in scrutinizing the pretensions of self-styled baronets, and the facts which he has stated may tend to restrain claimants of hereditary honours from assuming their titles before having proved their pedigrees.—Athenaeum.

The amount of work expended in the collection of the details contained in this book is something appalling to the ordinary mind. These facts require study before they can be estimated or criticised, but there is one feature of the book which will be apparent to the most casual turner-over of the leaves. We all know the trim arms usual in Peerages, where all the coats are at first sight as much alike as two peas. But here all is different. The supporters look as if they were supporting something, and many of the shields would evidently fall into space without their assistance. All is life and action, so that these woodcuts, which are all drawn from authentic sources, give a liveliness to the volume which it would not otherwise possess.—Temple Bar.

Viewing this work as a whole, we have no hesitation in declaring it to be vastly superior to any modern Peerage in existence; and, if carried on in future with the same elaborate care with which it has been originated, it is destined at no distant date to supplant in public estimation those older works which lack the authenticity and trustworthiness to be found in its pages.—The National Church.

A handsome volume of ambitious design. Mr. Foster has devoted the last five years to the production of a trustworthy book of reference. . . . The whole work has been prepared with great care and taste, and gives promise of taking its place in the foremost rank of such publications.—The Globe.

Mr. Foster's method of separating the Peerages which have descended through heiresses or which have been revived in favour of coheirs from the paternal descent of the present holders of them is a great and manifest improvement. Mr. Foster's is an ampler record of the Knights and their immediate families than is to be met with anywhere else; and he adds a full and useful catalogue of the Companions of all the various Knightly Orders of the Empire.—Pall Mall Gazette.

It might have been thought that books of the Peerage were already sufficiently numerous, but Mr. Joseph Foster shows good cause to the contrary. He has approached his subject from the point of view of the scientific genealogist and student of heraldry—a circumstance which at once places his work in another category from any of the other Peerages.—The Scotsman.
